"MME. BRAYTON" SENT TO PRISON

Notorious Tenderloin Character Once Worth Several Hundred Thousand Dollars Could Not Pay $100 Fine.

Margaret C. Sandford, better known in the Tenderloin as "Mme. Brayton" was sent to the Tombs Prison for thirty days, from the Court of Special Sessions to-day, in default of paying a $100 fine for conviction of maintaining a dis-orderly house in East Eighty-fourth street, near Fifth avenue, one of the most exclusive sections of the east side of the city.

of the city.

The house, the police say, is a fourstory and basement brownstone affair, and was sumptuously fitted up with constly furniture, russ, bric-a-brac, etc.
The rent was $1,800, and according to Mrs. Sandford, "the cheapest in the block."

Mrs. Sandford, "the cheapest in the block."

Only a few years ago, "Mma. Brayton" was rated to be worth $200,000. She said in court to-day that a lawyer had rotbed her of the greater portion of her wealth and that she had instituted proceedings against him to recover it.

Her condition is now so destitute, she said, that since the day of her arrest, on Aug. 8, she has been unable to raise the fee for a $500 bond.

"All my friends have deserted me," said she tearfully, as sh was led over to the Tombs. "What a horrible thing it is not to have a friend or a paltry $100. Why, I have spent ten times that in a day."
